COUNCIL MATTERS

Council met on April 12 with the head of WA Water Corporation Jim Gill to discuss the serious problems associated with the sewerage system in Wiluna. They are considering a fast track process by creating one large pond away from the town for all waste while the main plan is implemented.

A New Gazebo has been constructed at the Wiluna Cemetery for rest and contemplation. The next stage is to begin listing and displaying all the names from the Burial Register with corresponding grave numbers.

The Tjukurba Art Gallery has been very busy. More artists are coming forward to sell their work and some take the opportunity to work quietly at the Gallery. The Shire has purchased over $12,000 worth of paintings and has sold on approx $8,000 to visitors through a revolving fund. The idea of this venture is to offer an outlet for local artists in a not for profit structure. Sold paintings include a 10% commission which is returned to the artist in materials when they sell through the Gallery. Through the provision of stimulus in the gallery environment artists can improve their work and feel confident to deal with other buyers. At the end of May paintings from the Gallery will be on sale at the Newmont Jundee mine as a way of acknowledging reconciliation day. Some artists will attend to explain the work.

At the same time, more residents are visiting the Gallery to make use of the Shire lending library.

Council held discussions with DHW regarding house plan design to suit the Wiluna climate. The need to include a 'breezeway' in the design was emphasized by Wiluna residents.

Lion Ore representatives briefed council regarding their Honeymoon Well mine plans.
